Artemia Revolution

Artemia revolution: decapsulated brine shrimp eggs

Brine shrimp eggs without shells. Then eggs are preserved virtually indefinitely in a special fluid. Each hatch will provide around 10,000 brine shrimp.

Add 3 – 5 drops per hatcher and leave in the aquarium under light for 24 hours. Then strain the shrimps under a fine mesh shrimp net, or coffee filter paper and feed them to your fish.

These specially treated brine shrimp eggs need a special hatcher in order to be successfully hatched.
